INCORPORATED SOCIETIES ACT 2002

EXPLANATORY MEMORANDUM

1. There are occasions when a group of persons with social or charitable purpose have been impaired in their ability to enter into transactions or obtain overseas or other project funding because they are not recognisable legal persons. Such bodies cannot be incorporated under the Companies Ordinance because they are not organised for the purpose of earning business income for members. The Act is modelled on the New Zealand legislation is common in the Commonwealth jurisdictions. It creates a system for recognising such social persons.
2. The Act would allow any group to be incorporated by registration of their name, their purpose and Rules and by identification of the persons who will accept responsibility from time to time, for the proper running of the affairs of the group.
3. Persons who deal with the society will be able to have some confidence that there is a Registry which ensures that proper registration and annual filings are available, and that if there is a claim to be made against the society, that the office holders and the registered offence can be easily identified. It is important for the Government to know, on behalf of the people, that such organisations are managed by responsible persons, and that any complaint of mismanagement will not be frustrated, only because identification of responsible individuals is difficult.
4. Where a society needs to be wound for any reason, a process for liquidation is prescribed by the legislation.
5. In addition, there should be also considered consequential amendment of any similar legislation, like the Red Cross Society Act, so that such legal bodies are brought into the incorporated society regime. Such existing bodies will be obliged to disclose to the public through the Registry, who are the present persons managing the society, and such other corporate matters in which the public and the Government have a proper interest.
6. Some of the requirements and obligations of a society under the Bill are as follows:
  - 6.1 there must be at least 15 members (s 3);
  - 6.2 a majority of the members must consent to its registration (s 3); of Rules that provide for the matters set out in clause 5; and any changes to the Rules must be notified to the Registrar (s 22);
  - 6.3 it must make an application for incorporation (s 6);
  - 6.4 members have no right to the property of the society (s 14);
  - 6.5 there must be a registered office (s 18);
  - 6.6 its operations must conform to its stated objects (s 19);

6.7 it must refrain from in engaging in activities for pecuniary gain as defined by s 4 (s 20);

6.8 there shall be kept a register of members, a copy of which shall go to the Registrar when required (s 22);

6.9 an annual financial statement and a statement of particulars showing the executive members shall be delivered to the Registrar (s 23);

6.10 it may be wound up and its assets liquidated if it suspends operations, it becomes too small, it becomes insolvent, or it breaches the Act or the High Court thinks it is just and equitable that it be wound up (s 27);

6.11 it must cooperate with the Registrar when he demands to investigate the affairs of the society (s 36).
