Remarks: - The reasons behind the promulgation of this Royal Decree: Though there are many Royal Decrees laid down the provisions under Chapter 1, Chapter 2, Chapter 3 and Chapter 5 of the Animal Epidemics Act B.E. 2499 (1956) in birds, chickens, ducks, geese and their eggs for fertilization, none of those stipulates the enforcement of the provisions under Chapter 4 of the said Act. But in the present time, the occurrence of Bird Flu or Avian Influenza as well as other poultry diseases such as Salmonellosis and Newcastle disease, which spread in birds, chickens, ducks, geese and also affect their eggs for fertilization. The negative impact of such diseases affects poultry raising business, both domestic and international trade of poultry and poultry products. Thus for control of these poultry diseases, it is considered appropriate to use the provisions under Chapter 4 of the Animal Epidemics Act B.E. 2499 (1956) for enforcement in birds, chickens, ducks, geese and their eggs for fertilization. As there are many relevant Royal Decrees, a revision with sum up into one Royal Decree for easy usage in crosscheck and reference by competent officials and general public is appropriate. Thus, it is necessary to enact this Royal Decree.
