PART I - ATTEMPTS

4 Definition of attempt

- (1) An attempt to commit an offence is an act done or omitted with intent to commit that offence forming part of a series of acts or omissions which would have constituted the offence if such series of acts or omissions had not been interrupted by the voluntary determination of the offender not to complete the offence or by some other cause.
- (2) A person who attempts to commit an offence by any means shall not be acquitted on the ground that by reason of the imperfection or other condition of the means or by reason of the circumstances affecting the person against whom or the thing in respect of which the crime was intended to be committed it was not possible to commit the crime according to his intent.

Illustrations

A points a gun at B believing it to be loaded and meaning immediately to discharge it at him. A is guilty of an attempt to harm B although the gun is not, in fact, loaded.

A puts his hand into B’s pocket intending to steal. A is guilty of an attempt to steal although there is nothing in the pocket.

5 Punishment for attempts

- (1) Every person who attempts to commit any offence punishable by imprisonment shall (unless the punishment for an attempt to commit such offence is otherwise expressly specified by law) be liable to imprisonment for a period not exceeding one-half of the longest period to which a person actually committing that offence might be lawfully sentenced.
- (2) Every person who attempts to commit any offence punishable by fine shall (unless the punishment for an attempt to commit such offence is otherwise expressly specified by law) be liable to a fine not exceeding one-half of the maximum fine which a person who had actually committed the said offence might be sentenced to pay.

6 Conviction for attempt on charge of offence

Where the complete commission of the offence charged is not proved but the evidence establishes an attempt to commit the offence, the accused person may be convicted of this attempt and punished accordingly:

Provided that after a conviction for the attempt the person so convicted shall not be liable to be tried again for the offence which he was charged with committing.

7 Conviction for attempt when full offence proved

Where an attempt to commit an offence is charged but the evidence established the commission of the full offence the accused shall not be entitled to be discharged but he may be convicted of the attempt and punished accordingly:

Provided that after a conviction for the attempt the accused person shall not be liable to be tried again for the offence which he was charged with attempting to commit.

PART II - ABETMENT, HARBOURING CRIMINALS, CONSPIRACY, ETC.

8 Abetment of crime and punishment of abettor

Every person who directly or indirectly commands, incites, encourages or procures the commission of an offence by any other person and every person who knowingly does any act for the purpose of facilitating the commission of an offence by any other person is an abettor and shall (unless otherwise expressly specified by any enactment) —

- (a) where the offence is actually committed in pursuance or during the continuance of such abetment be liable to the same punishment as if he himself had actually committed that offence; and

- (b) where the offence is not actually committed shall be liable where the offence abetted was murder to imprisonment for life or any less period and in the case of abetment of any other offence to imprisonment for a period not exceeding one-half of the longest period to which a person committing that offence might be sentenced or to a fine not exceeding one-half of the maximum fine which a person committing that offence might be sentenced to pay.

Illustrations

A and B are fighting unlawfully; C and others hinder a police officer from stopping the fight. C and the others are guilty of abetting the fight.

A offers B $10 to assault C. A is guilty of abetting an assault on C.

A encourages B to break and enter a shop. If B is discovered and arrested while attempting to do so, A will be liable on a charge of abetting to imprisonment for five years, one-half of the longest sentence that can be imposed for housebreaking. If B actually completes the offence of housebreaking, A is liable to 10 years' imprisonment.

9 Jurisdiction

Whoever abets an offence shall be punishable in the Supreme Court or in the Magistrate's Court according as he would be punishable if he had committed that offence.

10 Trial

An abettor may be tried before with or after a person abetted and although the person abetted is dead or is otherwise not amenable to justice.

11 Proof

Every person who counsels, incites or procures another to commit an offence which that other afterwards commits is an abettor of that offence although it may be committed in a different manner from that which was counselled.

Illustration

A incites B to murder C by shooting him. B commits the murder by poisoning C. A is an abettor of B's crime.

12 Abettor deemed a party to any offence committed as a result of his counselling

Every person who counsels, incites or procures another to commit an offence is a party to every offence which that other commits in consequence of such counselling, inciting or procuring and which the person counselling, inciting or procuring knew or ought to have known would be likely to be committed in consequence of such counselling, inciting or procuring.

Illustrations

A incites B to steal from C. B in attempting to do so is discovered by C and murders him. Here A is guilty only of abetting theft and not of abetting murder.

13 Harboursing criminals

Every person who knowing or having reason to believe that any person has —

- (a) committed an offence;
- (b) been charged by any prosecuting authority with any offence;
- (c) been issued with a summons by any Court in respect of any offence; shall be liable to imprisonment for any period not exceeding 2 years.

- (2) Where a person causes any wasteful employment of the police by knowingly making to any person a false report tending to show that an offence has been committed, or to give rise to apprehension for the safety of any persons or property, or tending to show that he has information material to any police inquiry, he is guilty of an offence and is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding $500 or to imprisonment for any period not exceeding 6 months.⁷

15 Conspiracy

- (1) If 2 or more persons agree to act together with a common purpose in order to commit or abet an offence whether with or without any previous concert or deliberation each of them is guilty of conspiracy to commit or abet that offence as the case may be.
- (2) If 2 or more persons are guilty of conspiracy to commit or abet any offence each of them shall in case the offence is committed be liable to be punished as if he had actually committed that offence or shall in case the offence is not committed be punished as if he had abetted that offence.

 - (b) of capacity to understand that such act or omission was wrong.⁸
- (2) A person who is suffering from mental disease at the time of doing the act or making the omission charged against him as an offence and who owing to such mental disease is affected by delusions on some matter or matters but whose mental condition does not render him irresponsible at law within the meaning of subsection (1) is criminally responsible to the same extent as if the facts with respect to which such delusions exist were real.

18 Procedure where accused on arraignment appears to be insane

If any accused person appears before or upon arraignment in the Supreme Court to be insane, a jury may be sworn to try whether he is sane or insane and the jury after hearing evidence for that purpose shall find whether or not he is insane and unfit to take his trial:

Provided that a verdict under this section finding an accused person to be insane shall not prevent such person from being tried for the offence with which he is charged in case he subsequently becomes of sound mind.

19 Procedure where accused was insane at time of committing the crime

If upon the trial in the Supreme Court of any person against whom any act or omission is charged as an offence, evidence is given that such person at the time when such act or omission took place was insane within the meaning of section 17 hereof, then if it appears to the jury or to the Court when it is sitting without a jury that he was so insane as aforesaid at the time when such act or omission took place the jury or the Court, as the case may be shall return a special verdict that the accused is not guilty because he was insane at the time when he did the act or made the omission.⁹

20 Custody of accused person found to be insane

Where any person is found to be insane under the provisions of either section 18 or section 19 hereof the Court shall order him to be detained in safe custody in such manner and place as it determines.¹⁰

 - (a) the state of intoxication was caused without his consent by the malicious or negligent act of another person; or
 - (b) the person charged was by reason of intoxication insane temporarily or otherwise at the time of such act or omission.
- (3) Where the defence under the preceding subsection is established then in a case falling under paragraph (a) thereof the accused person shall be discharged and in a case failing under paragraph (b) the provisions of this Act relating to insane persons shall apply.
- (4) Intoxication shall be taken into account for the purpose of determining whether the person charged had formed any intention specific or otherwise in the absence of which he would not be guilty of the offence.
- (5) For the purpose of this section “intoxication” shall be deemed to include a state produced by narcotics or drugs.¹¹

22 Married women

A married woman committing an offence in the presence of her husband shall not be presumed to have committed it under his compulsion.

 - (d) that his act was in respect either of the instrument or means used or of the brutal manner in which it was used, greatly in excess of the measure in which a person of ordinary character would have been likely under the circumstances to be deprived of his self-control by the provocation.
- (2) Where the accused person in the course of a fight made use of any deadly or dangerous means against an adversary who had not used or manifested any intention of being about to use any such means against him, then if it appears that the accused person purposed or prepared to use such means before he had received any such blow or hurt in the fight as might be sufficient provocation to use means of that kind, he shall be presumed to have used the means from a previous purpose to cause death notwithstanding that before the actual use of the means he may have received any such blow or hurt in the fight as might amount to extreme provocation.

PART X - OFFENCES AGAINST PROPERTY

143 Definition of theft

Theft is the dishonest taking without any colour of right of anything (which by section 144 is declared capable of being stolen) with intent either —

- (a) to deprive the owner permanently of such thing; or
- (b) to deprive any other person permanently of any lawful interest possessed by him in such thing, and with the intention of converting such thing to the use of any other person without the consent of the owner or person possessing such interest therein as aforesaid; "theft" and "steal" shall be construed accordingly.¹⁴⁴

Explanations

If the article which the defendant is charged with stealing was taken by him either by mistake or in the honest belief that he had a right to it or with the full intention of returning it to its owner the defendant cannot be convicted of theft.

If the thing alleged to have been stolen was not moved by the defendant in the slightest degree from its place the offence does not amount to theft. Thus if A while opening a box to steal money contained in it and before moving any money from its place in the box becomes aware that he is being watched and desists and runs away he cannot be convicted of theft but may be convicted of attempted theft. If however A had taken some of the money out of the box and put it beside him on the floor he could be convicted of theft of that amount.

144 Things capable of being stolen

- (1) Every animate thing which is the property of any person is capable of being stolen.
- (2) Every inanimate thing which is the property of any person is capable of being stolen:

Explanations

A horse, dog or fowl is capable of being stolen by reason of subsection (1).

Money, a boat or coconuts lying on the ground are capable of being stolen by reason of subsection (2)(a). Coconuts growing on a tree, yams growing in the ground are capable of being stolen under subsection (2)(b) as soon as the coconuts are detached from the tree or the yams are dug up even though the detaching or digging was done by the thief in order to steal them.

- (3) Money and all other property, real or personal, including things in action and other intangible property is capable of being stolen.¹⁴⁵

145 Punishment for theft¹⁴⁶

Every person who commits theft is liable —

- (a) if the value of the thing stolen does not exceed $10,000, to imprisonment for any period not exceeding 3 years;
- (b) if the value of the thing stolen exceeds $10,000, to imprisonment for any period not exceeding 7 years.

146 Whipping upon conviction in certain cases

Whenever upon the conviction of any male person for theft or for any offence against sections 154, 155 and 173, the Court may, in its discretion, in addition to any sentence of imprisonment authorised under this Act, order the person so convicted to be whipped in accordance with the provisions of section 31 hereof.¹⁴⁷

147 Taking things according to Tongan custom

- (4) Any person who, without lawful excuse, knowing or believing the same to have been stolen or obtained in any way whatsoever under such circumstances that if the act had been committed in the Kingdom the person committing it would have been guilty of an offence, receives or has in his possession any property so stolen or obtained outside the Kingdom is guilty of an offence and is liable to the same punishment as if he had committed theft.
- (5) For the purposes of this section and of any other written law relating to receivers or receiving, a person shall be treated as receiving property if he dishonestly undertakes or assists in its retention, removal, disposal or realisation, or if he arranges to do so.¹⁴⁹

149 Summons charging theft may also contain charge of receiving

It shall be lawful to insert in any summons charging theft a charge of receiving the stolen property or any part thereof knowing or believing the same to have been stolen and it shall be lawful for the Court by whom such charges are tried to adjudge the defendant guilty either of stealing the property or of receiving the same or any part thereof knowing or believing it to have been stolen.¹⁵⁰

If the police fail to discover the owner within one month after receiving such notification as aforesaid the District Officer shall re-deliver the thing found to the finder and it shall become his absolute property.¹⁵³
- (3) Nothing in this section shall exempt a person from liability to punishment for stealing or receiving property knowing or believing it to have been stolen if his action amounts to either of such offences.¹⁵⁴

152 Explanation as to stealing of thing found

A person who takes possession of a thing which appears to have been lost by another person is not guilty of stealing unless —

- (a) at the time of taking possession he knows who is the owner of the thing or by whom it has been lost;
